

Becker's ASC Review Names 135 Leading Ophthalmologists in America

CHICAGO—Becker's ASC Review is pleased to announce the publication of its list of "135 Leading Ophthalmologists in America," which recognizes outstanding ophthalmologists in healthcare organizations across the country.

The ophthalmologists named to this list lead their field in clinical and research efforts, furthering the practice of ophthalmology with their hard work, knowledge and dedication to the specialty. The chosen ophthalmologists were selected for the list based on the awards they receive from major ophthalmic organizations, their leadership in these organizations, work on professional publications and positions of service.

Physicians do not pay and cannot pay to be included on this list. There are never fees involved in Becker's ASC Review lists. Recognized providers are free to note their inclusion through marketing materials, website promotion, press releases and other media materials without paying a fee.

The full-length version of this list can be found online here:

www.beckersasc.com/lists/135-leading-ophthalmologists-in-america/all-pages.html

About Becker's ASC Review

Becker's ASC Review features general business, legal and clinical guidance on topics including joint-ventures, development and expansion, and regulatory and compliance issues; as well as analysis and insight for specialties including bariatrics, orthopedics/spine, gastroenterology, neurosurgery, pain management, ophthalmology, ENT and anesthesiology. Each of the nine annual issues of the publication reaches a qualified audience of more than 25,000 key business decision-holders, including surgeons, medical directors, directors of surgery, ASC administrators and others involved in the rapidly growing field of outpatient surgery. Further, every ASC in the nation receives Becker's ASC Review.

###